ABOUT

Beyond Kruger

Beyond Kruger belief to "regenerate" is not only to give back to our local communities and the preserving and sustaining of the beauty that already exist, but it is to shift our focus from sustainable tourism to the larger concept of regenerative tourism where we give back to our land and be vicarious in the challenges of restoring and healing everything that has suffered, been threatened or even extinct.

This is tourism that actively and intentionally creates the conditions for communities and places to thrive and flourish. It is tourism that gives back more than it takes, that delivers net benefit to all stakeholders.

The Selati Game Reserve stretches over 30 000ha of pristine wilderness with the Selati river running through it. This is a Big 5 Reserve, it is also home to Sable Antelope, White and Black Rhino as well as the rarest cycad on the planet. You will find a rich and diverse geological history with the Murchison Greenstone belt in the north-west of the reserve that contains the oldest rock formations on earth.

The rest of the reserve is made up of three different granite and pegmatite formations. Selati Game Reserve prides itself on being one of the reserves with the lowest carbon print in the Greater Kruger Region.

COMMUNITY & Conservation

What sets us apart is the unprecedented Re-Wilding where we have already initiated the re-wilding process by reintroducing certain species into their natural habitat. This monumental effort has been made possible through the unwavering dedication and financial support of our esteemed directors and partners who share a common passion for safeguarding this prestigious piece of land.

The reintroduction of species back into their natural habitat is the deliberate release of a species into the wild, from captivity or other areas where the species are capable of survival. The goal of re-wilding is to establish a healthy genetically diverse self-sustaining population to an area where it has been extirpated or to augment and existing population. Species that may be eligible for reintroduction are typically but not limited to threatened or endangered in the wild.

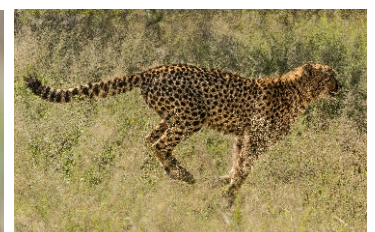

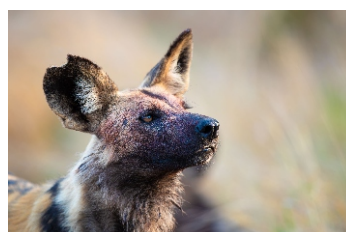

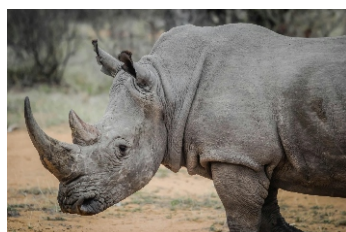

As stewards of our planet's precious ecosystems, we are committed to nurturing the next generation of conservationists through transformative training courses. These courses will delve deep into nature-related subjects that resonate with our ethos, providing hands-on learning experiences that inspire and empower.

With sustainable Cooperation Model, our blueprint for success hinges on establishing a sustainable model that embodies private, community, and government collaboration at its core. By fostering a harmonious partnership among stakeholders, we aim to set a shining example of how collective efforts can pave the way for long-term conservation success.

In our quest for sustainability, we are introducing a range of income-generating activities that not only benefit the environment but also create numerous job opportunities within local communities. From immersive tourism experiences and thought-provoking conferences to engaging team-building exercises and captivating photographic tours, every activity contributes towards our shared vision of harmony between nature and humanity.

Join us on this quest as we go beyond boundaries and redefine what it means to protect and preserve our natural world. Together, let's create a legacy that transcends time.

Let us stand in admiration of this dedication and commitment towards creating a brighter future for both wildlife and communities alike.
